[REDACTED] and I had a call with Tatiana this morning. During the call, she said that her client did not remember any particular flights, aside from a flight she remembers with terrible turbulence. She did not recall any flights with [REDACTED] [REDACTED]. Tatiana noted that, based on her conversations with her client, it seems there are errors in the flight logs generally – for example, she noted that she recalled seeing in public versions of flight logs that a flight was listed with [REDACTED], which would not have happened. She noted that her client recalled seeing a flight log that listed [REDACTED]. With respect to [REDACTED], Tatiana said that her client had a vague memory of perhaps stopping by the Palm Beach house when [REDACTED] were there, but didn't remember any details, and she wasn't sure if that was her memory or whether she would have adopted the memory based on something Epstein told her, so she wasn't 100% confident this happened. She otherwise had no memory of meeting [REDACTED] [REDACTED].

Later today, [REDACTED] and I called Tatiana. We told Tatiana that, in preparation for our meeting, I had reviewed materials and noticed a stray line in a 302 that referenced Eva's first name in the context of a discussion of a sexualized massage. I explained that we did not have more clarity on that, and would look into it, but raised this in order to be transparent, given our previous representations that we viewed Eva Dubin as a witness only. After further discussion, we agreed to reschedule the interview, so that we could have more time to look into this and discuss with her, but we agreed to meet with her client this afternoon by video to say hello and apologize for cancelling.
